

Chadwick Model Agency was thrilled when the beautiful Jessica Hart won their Model Search competition with Dolly magazine back in 2000.

Discovered in a Melbourne shopping centre and convinced to enter the competition, 14 year old Jessica Hart immediately endeared herself to the industry with her determination to maintain a unique look that continues to set her apart.

Now based in New York and working every major international Fashion market, Jessica has become one of the most recognized models in the world.

Jessica has appeared in international campaigns for Guess and H+M, Seafolly for consecutive years 10/11 in Australia and graced the cover of Australian Vogue on numerous occasions and shoots regularly for Victoria Secret.

Jessica built her profile with extensive editorial in Italian Elle, Black Book, Velvet, American Cosmopolitan, British Glamour and American Glamour among others also featuring in the highly prestigious Sports Illustrated Swimsuit issue and Australian GQ.

Working regularly with leading photographers including Terry Richardson, Mario Sorrenti, Inez & Vinoodh, Solve Sundsbo, Patrick Demarchelier, Bruce Weber, 2012 proved to be a busy year. Jessica also graced the covers of the German, Spanish, Italian and Serbian editions of Elle and editorial for the US and French editions of Marie Claire.

Jessica enjoyed her time with leading Australian retailer Myer for a number of years and was proud to have an involvement in the label Neon Harts with General Pants up to the end of 2012.

In August of that year Jessica appeared in a "Mambo Goddess" campaign shot in Palm Springs and was thrilled to be involved with this iconic Australian brand.

Jessica finished off 2012 with a bang walking in the prestigious Victoria Secret Show to huge media attention and then shooting Italian and American Vogue straight after.

2013 saw Jessica build on her position as one of the worlds most recognizable models being featured as a style icon in a myriad of fashion mags across all leading capitals and walking in the highly regarded Louis Vuitton show during Paris Fashion Week.

Determined to maintain strong ties at home in Australia and with a huge social network following Jessica Hart is attracting the sort of worldwide attention that is placing her firmly at the top of the International Fashion Elite.
